

Scientist – Community Speed-Hui

During the first week of December, New Zealand's foremost freshwater experts will be gathering in Murihiku/Southland for a joint conference ("Weathering the Storm") which will cover freshwater quality, quantity and management. This is an exciting chance for the NZ Hydrological Society, NZ Rivers Group and the NZ Freshwater Sciences Society to take a holistic view of our freshwater environment.

This year the societies want to give something back to the community that is hosting them by holding a community event to bring together community, Iwi and freshwater experts to share their knowledge and stories. This will help form a greater collective understanding of the issues we all face relating our freshwaters and potential solutions.

The event will be held at the Otatara Community Centre in Invercargill Monday 30th November from 5:30pm to 7:30pm
